Spring 2014 Special Edition

Choral Music by Joelle Wallach Performed on May 1 by Chorus of the Turtle Bay Music School

Joelle Wallach's When Lost in the Forest, will be performed by the Chorus of the Turtle Bay Music School on Thursday, May 1 - 6:30 PM in Em Lee Concert Hall of Turtle Bay Music School, 244 East 52nd Street in New York, NY.

When Lost in the Forest is one of Wallach's Spiritual Speculations, a series of short choral works exploring the dilemmas of conscience in a flawed world. The piece is based on a poem by David Wagoner and reflects the Pacific Northwest Indians' reliance on the wisdom of nature, on stillness and silence.

This performance is free and open to the public; a wine reception follows. For more information, call 212-753-8811 or visit <http://www.tbms.org/>.

Joelle Wallach served as Con-Edison Music in the Metropolis Composer-in-Residence at Turtle Bay Music School for most of Fall 2013. This program is sponsored by Con Edison and administered by Exploring the Metropolis, Inc.

This residency provides free space in cultural and community facilities for composition work in in four facilities in Manhattan, Queens and Brooklyn. More about the program at <http://exploringthemetropolis.org/>.
